

House Wrens are busy little birds. They are always on the move in the wooded lot, farmyard or orchard, feeding on small insects. Wrens hold their tails high. Their song rises and falls in spurts. These little birds use bird houses for nesting. They use the same house year after year. They also nest in tree holes. The eggs, five to ten, are white, spotted with brown.